GRANDVIEW ADDITION

Living down town is unpleasant—on account of the dust, heat and noise. Living too far from town means loneliness and lack of conveniences. Grandview Addition strikes the happy medium—far enough out to be quiet, cool and pleasant, but reached by two car lines and supplied with telephone connection, electric lights and all other conveniences.

No Interest, No Taxes,
No Mortgage

For the home builder Grandview offers exceptional opportunities. In the first place, Grandview lots are selling on easy terms—$10.00 down, $5.00 a month—enabling you to buy more than if you had a large cash payment to make. Then, Grandview lots are level—requiring little or no grading. Again, Grandview has good soil so your home may be made beautiful with grass and flowers. And finally, the advantages of Grandview Addition are being generally recognized and lots bought now will increase in value every month that you hold them. We are anxious that you investigate to your entire satisfaction. Let us take you out to Grandview; examine our books and see the kind of people who have bought there; prove for yourself that Grandview Addition is the ideal home section of El Paso.

FAIR DIRECTORS CONSIDERING 1910 PLANS

Subscription Fund Needs
$5000—Homeseekers May Increase Attendance.

Plans conditional upon the financing of the El Paso fair association are now being made by the board of directors and the men who will get behind the El Paso fair this year. Among the plans which have met with the general approval of the directors, is one to have homeseekers' tickets granted from all parts of the east, the middle west and north to El Paso during the fair. These homeseekers' rates are now being issued on all of the roads to California, and the plan is to have the same privilege granted as far as El Paso, and also to permit the making of side trips to the sections surrounding El Paso, including the Mesilla and El Paso valleys, the San Simon valley and other fertile lands which are to be colonized.

Rates Wanted On All Roads.
These rates could apply on all roads leading to El Paso and by granting a sufficiently long stopover, the homeseekers could visit the El Paso fair and by inspecting the exhibits and talking with the representatives of the various districts of the southwest, get information much more valuable than it would otherwise be possible to gain about the country in this section of the southwest.

Another reason for the holding of the annual fair and exposition is the possibility of El Paso as a show place for the visitors from outside of the city and especially from the east. The skyscraper building will be well advanced, or will have been completed by the time the fair is held, and as an advertising medium the skyscraper will be more of an attraction than the biggest fat girl on the side show grounds.

Subscriptions Needed.
E. S. Rood, who has the canvass for funds in charge, is making a personal call upon all of the old subscribers in an effort to have their subscriptions increased, and he is also making a strenuous effort to raise the $5000 necessary to finance the 1910 fair. The directors are also assisting in the canvass for funds and a whirlwind campaign to raise the needed $5000 will be continued during the remainder of the week. Work on the catalog for the fair, the entry lists and feature attractions have not yet been attended to, but it will be necessary to decide definitely upon the proposition of holding a fair this year before it is too late to secure the high class attractions which go to make up a successful exhibition.

The catalog was ready for distribution by June 2 last year, and the work on the new one will require much more time because of the additional entry lists which must be added. For this reason the active work on the preparations for the fair must begin not later than the first of next week when it is hoped to have the final $5000 raised by popular subscriptions among the friends of the fair in El Paso.

has bought, and offers for sale, 66,000 acres of the choicest River bottom alluvium at "Bebelama," State of Sinaloa, Mexico.

Abundant water from the Sinaloa River is delivered to each purchaser at the highest point on his land. Land also fronts on ocean shore and two harbors afford facilities for ocean transportation by coasting steamers.

Everything that one can expect to raise in this latitude can be grown profitably here. Three crops of some kinds, if desired, and alfalfa, about ten cuttings.

Climate is ideal. Trade wind tempers summer heat, while nearness to ocean prevents frost and mean range of temperature is but 30 degrees, 60 to 90 degrees Fahrenheit. Elevation 20 to 40 feet above sea level.

Property lies about fifteen miles below the Bamao, or Naranjo Stations of the R. V. C. and Pacific Railway, to which a spur track will be built, affording the best and lowest rates for freights and fares.

To those buying now, these lands will be sold at bed rock price of $20.00 U. S. Currency per acre, payable in three installments, one-third cash, balance in one and two years with 8% per annum interest on deferred payments. All of the water required for irrigation of each tract will be furnished by the Bebelama Water Company at price of $2.00 U. S. Currency per acre per annum perpetually.

General Henry Ide Willey, the distinguished Irrigation Engineer, in his report upon this project, states that:

"In all respects it presents phenomenally favorable features, nothing equaling it has ever been found by me in all my extensive experience."

The land is divided into tracts of about 60 acres each, or 250x1000 meters, and not less than 30 acres can be bought under the contemplated Town Sites are segregated.

LINCOLN WAS NOMINATED FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

Chicago Convention of 1860 Was the First of Modern Conventions. Many Spectators Being Admitted.

Fifty years ago today the Republican national convention nominated Abraham Lincoln for president and Hannibal Hamlin for vice president, in Chicago.

Though the big celebration of the semi-centennial which it was planned to hold in Chicago has been deferred on account of the lack of time to make the necessary arrangements, the anniversary was not to be allowed to pass wholly unobserved. The Lincoln

Emancipation league, of the District of Columbia prepared a program for anniversary exercises in which a number of men prominent in the public life of the nation took part Monday night the anniversary of the convening of the convention.

The Chicago convention, known to history as the "Wigwam convention," was not only the most important political convention ever held in the United States because of the issues raised by its platform, but it also set the pace in numerous regards for all the national conventions since. Prior to 1860 the conventions had been comparatively tame. They had been in the nature of semi-private assemblies, the general public not being admitted in large numbers.

The convention of 1860 was the first of the modern style of conventions. It was the first to have a special building erected for it. At that convention telegraph wires and instruments were for the first time brought into a convention building. For the first time large numbers of spectators were admitted and for the first time there was organized cheering and planned demonstrations.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Howard Jeffries marries waitress while at college and is disinherited by rich father. Stepmother visits apartments of her old flame, Robert Underwood, to try to prevent him ending his life when pressed by creditors. Howard, visiting Underwood, a former college mate, seeking a loan, is asleep in the apartments during the interview and a stepmother leaves Underwood shoots himself. Howard awakens and is arrested and, by police third degree methods, is made to confess to the crime. His wife seeks aid of his family.

wealth, culture and refinement. It was the first time she had ever entered its gates, although, in a measure, she was entitled to look upon it as her own home. Perhaps never so much as now she realized what a deep gulf lay between her husband's family and herself. This was a world she had never known—a world of opulence and luxury. She did not know how she had summoned up courage enough to come. Yet there was no time to be lost. Immediate action was necessary. Howard must have the best lawyers that money could procure.

Judge Brewster had been deaf to her entreaties. He had declined to take the case. She had no money. Howard's father must come to his assistance. She would plead with him and insist that it was his duty to stand by his son. She wondered how he would receive her, if he would put her out or be rude to her. He might tell the servants to shut the door in her face. Timidly she rang the bell. The butler opened the door, and summoning up all her courage, she asked: "Is Mr. Jeffries in?"

To her utter amazement the butler offered no objection to her entering. Mistaking her for a woman reporter, several of whom had already called that morning, he said:

"Go right in the library, madam; the other newspaper folk are there." She passed through the splendid reception hall, marveling inwardly at the beautiful statuary and pictures, no little intimidated at finding herself amid such splendid surroundings. On the left there was a door draped with handsome tapestry.

"Right in there, miss," said the butler.

She went in, and found herself in a room of noble proportions, the walls of which were lined with bookshelves filled with tomes in rich bindings. The light that entered through the stained-glass windows cast a subdued half-light, warm and rich in color, on the crimson plush furnishings. Near the heavy flat desk in the center of the room a tall, distinguished man was standing listening deprecatingly to the half dozen reporters who were bombarding him with questions. As Annie entered the room she caught the words of his reply:

"The young man who has inherited my name has chosen his own path in life. I am grieved to say that his conduct at college, his marriage, has completely separated him from his family, and I have quite made up my mind that in no way or manner can his family become identified with any steps he may take to escape the penalty of his mad act. I am his father, and I suppose, under the circumstances, I ought to say something. But I have decided not to. I don't wish to give the American public any excuse to think that I am palliating or condoning his crime. Gentlemen, I wish you good-day."

"Let's make one more attempt to get a talk out of the old man," suggested one enterprising scribe.

"All right," cried the others in chorus. "You go ahead. We'll follow in a body and back you up."

Passing through the front gate, they rang the bell, and after a brief parley were admitted to the house. They had hardly disappeared when a cab drove hurriedly up and stopped at the curb. A young woman, heavily veiled, descended, paid the driver, and walked quickly through the gates toward the house.

Annie tried to feel brave, but her heart misgave her when she saw this splendid home with all its evidence of
